WET CANDIDATES HOLD CARNEGIE HALL RALLY

Nominees of Both Big Parties Score Dry Law Act.

Democratic and Republican candidates who have wine and beer planks in their personal platforms appeared last night at an "Old Home Rally" in Carnegie Hall, held under the auspices of the Molly Pitcher Club of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment. Other political meetings prevented the hall from being filled, but several hundred women cheered the speakers, who denounced the Volstead act and its effects.

Representative W. Bourke Cockran said that the Volstead act has brought about contempt for the law on every side, which, he added, is justified. He said that prohibition enforcement agents rightly are regarded as "spies," and that "every spy is a crook."

Other speakers were Thomas J. Boylan, candidate for Congress; Loring W. Black, Jr., candidate for Congress from the Third Congressional district, in Brooklyn; Col. Ransom H. Gillett, counsel of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment; Miss Elisabeth Marbury and Mrs. Frederick Nathan. Miss Alice Carpenter presided.
